NO. 1

GREETING

This issue of the Quarterly marks the beginning of another era in the history of this school. All the State Normal Schools in the Commonwealth at their beginning were the property of stockholders, and to that extent private institutions. On June 29th, 1916, was consummated the transfer of the property to the State of Pennsylvania, represented by the State Board of Education. A higher compliment could hardly have been paid to the Board of Trustees that has managed the institution than was paid when the members of the new Board were all chosen from the body that then terminated its existence. The Alumni are thus assured that the trust was well administered and that no radical change in the policy of the school is to be anticipated. So far as is known no other Board of Trustees has been thus honored.

The first step taken under the new ownership has been a free application, not of whitewash, but of paint, good white lead, to the exterior wood-work and the window caps of all the buildings which has wrought a most pleasing effect. The long porch on the South side of the girls' dormitory has been entirely renewed and fairly shines resplendent in its new coat. The Domestic Science laboratory now occupies the entire north end of the first floor of Science Hall. There is now elbow room for every one that plies the needle. The biological laboratory has been furnished with beautiful cases for specimens in entomology that will greatly promote the acquisition of real knowledge in that subject. One will go far to find a finer equipment in this respect either as to its beauty or its utility. Room M, dear to every student of Pedagogy, has been tastefully renovated.

Cupid and the department of Art may be supposed to have similar aims, but Dan struck a severe blow at this co-adjutor when Miss Virginia McQuiston pierced to the heart, was no more. She is now Mrs. J. R. Morris, of 706 Market St., Wilmington, Del. The school, however, did not lose heart. Miss Lucy M. Shover was engaged, a graduate of the school of Art from which Miss McQuiston came, and will hold up the same high standards.

Filial duty occasioned the resignation of Miss Swartz, to the regret of the friends of the school. In the department of English, her fine preparation, her unflagging fidelity, and high ideals made her a teacher whose work counted for much in the training of her pupils. Her influence outside of the class room was strong in the interests of character building and of evangelical religion. Miss Gladys E. Teele, a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College, has taken up the work formerly in the hands of Miss Swartz.

French is now again regularly offered as an optional study in place of Latin or German. Prof. G. Edward Elwell, Jr., who taught this language so successfully three years ago, and who had special students when the school did not offer the option, is again a regular member of our teaching corps and already has large classes.

Miss Fiske, after two years of phenomenal success in the department of Expression, having unexpectedly resigned, to pursue special work, has been succeeded by Miss Jean MacDonald, who also is a graduate of Emerson.

Miss Jessie L. Freas who dignified the position of trained nurse by the rare good sense, the fidelity and ability manifested at all times, succumbed to the attacks of Cupid, and is now Mrs. Koons. The really wonderful health of the students last winter when the town had a very wide spread epidemic of measles was due in no small degree to the professional work of Miss Freas. Her mantle has fallen upon Mrs. Theresa Hehl Holmes, a graduate from the training school of the Bloomsburg Hospital.

Mr. Kimber Kuster, 1913, as assistant in Biology has succeeded Mr. Dieffenbach, who has entered the University of Oklahoma.

The school year opened with an attendance a little below that of last year so far as day scholars are concerned, due in part probably to the quarantine, because they have since been coming in freely. The most marked feature in attendance is the large increase in the number of young men.

The students are all now enjoying the annual receptions by the several churches.

The Literary Societies

PHILO.

The work in Philo continues to advance. The number of active members at the close of the school year in June, nineteen hundred and sixteen, was one hundred forty-five. The society looks forward to a very prosperous year, one hundred eighty active members having been received at the beginning of the school year.

The spirit in general is excellent; competent officers are in charge, each performing his duties creditably. The committees have begun their work zealously. The new members have shown interest in the work by taking active part in the discussions and program work.

An inter-society debate between Philo. and Callie. has been arranged.

A reception was tendered the new members; an excellent program was rendered and a pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.

The annual reunion to be held on Thanksgiving will be the fiftieth anniversary of the society, and is expected to be the best reunion the society has ever had. A most cordial invitation is extended to all. An excellent drama will be presented in the evening by a competent cast picked from the members of the society, ably coached by Miss MacDonald, who is head of the Elocution department.

CALLIE.

The Callie. Society is progressing very nicely. A large number of new members have been taken in this year. Most of the new members have shown that they have the talent, all they need is to be given a chance.

Each Saturday night the Society meets and the members render a program that does credit to them, to the Society, and to the school. Those taking an active part receive much benefit as well as furnish entertainment for the others.

Taking all things into consideration the society looks forward to a most successful year.

Y. M. C. A.

The prospects for this year are very encouraging. Altho we miss those of last year's class we hope that the new fellows will gradually be able to take the places of those who left us. The attendance of the fellows at Prayer Meeting is much larger than usual. This is a good sign.

Last June we sent three delegates to the Northfield Student Conference at Northfield, Massachusetts. We hope that the inspiration which they got may be given to some extent at least to the entire student body.

Last spring we started a class in Teacher Training for the Sunday School. Under the leadership of Prof. Bakeless this class is making excellent progress. Thus we are preparing ourselves not merely to be teachers of school subjects but teachers who know something of the life of the Great Teacher and who are willing to put some of His teaching into ours.

We expect to begin our deputization work before long. We hope to accomplish much this year along this rather new line of activity. We are impressed with the great needs of humanity everywhere. And those of us who do not help to alleviate these needs are not making the most of life.

Y. W. C. A.

The new members of the school were most royally and pleasantly welcomed by the reception given in their honor, by the Social Committee. The entertainment provided was such that everyone present was drawn into the fun. So pleasing was the evening that the new students forgot to be homesick and felt just as much at home here as did those who have been here for years.

The school year has certainly opened with pleasing prospects for the work of the Young Women's Christian Association.

Miss Snell, a student volunteer secretary, has given an impetus to the work of the Missionary Committee. The Bible Study Committee by way of a surprise is planning for a farther reaching work among our students than last year. One of the new features of the Social Service work is the Sunday afternoon cottage prayer meetings held among the shut-ins of the town.

The Eaglesmere delegation is planning to give its report in the form of a pantomime; in order that they may make clear to the student body the place that the Young Women's Christian Association holds in the life of the womanhood of the world. They also hope in this way to arouse a greater interest in the Summer Conference.

Athletics

"You never know your luck," is the fetching title of a modern novel. It might well be applied to the teams of schools such as ours where the composition of the athletic teams is strictly made up of those who chance to come to school to fit themselves for their chosen work. It would possibly be better to say choice on the part of the student, chance with respect to the make-up of the team.

Last year's graduating class carried with it the lion's share of the school's athletic material. The glooms said it was all over. The first two foot ball games of the season seemed to confirm the diagnosis. But they ignored the fact that Bucknell University and Muhlenburg College are not in our class and that a good walloping was to be expected. We got it in each case, but our boys gained more knowledge of foot-ball than they could have done by being chased up and down the field for a whole season by inferior teams.

Note the difference when they stepped back into their own class. Susquehanna Reserves were beaten by the score of 21-0, while Millersville Normal School suffered a defeat by the unusual score of 67-0.

The team is fast rounding into shape. Twenty-five or more candidates are in uniform nearly every evening. A good spirit prevails and the team looks very promising indeed. We look for some more well played games and a string of victories.

Captain Hodgson is a live-wire and instills life and spirit into every play. The plays are run off with a snap and dash which is very encouraging to followers of the team, while the interference is as good as we have seen for a long time.

The Millersville Normal School game line-up follows:

'82, Moore, Dr. E. J., State Superintendent of the Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon League, with headquarters in Philadelphia, has resigned his position to become assistant general superintendent of the National Organization. Dr. Moore resigned the pastorate of a large church in Northern Ohio to accept the duties of district superintendent of the Ohio State league and devoted fifteen years to the work. His work in Pennsylvania has been very successful. During his administration the league has succeeded in paying all debts and accumulating a balance. His wife Lue M. Crippen, '82, is an efficient helper in his work.

'83, Hutchison (Dillon) Louise, died at her home in Bloomsburg the morning of July 25. A pressure on the brain was the direct cause of her death but this was preceded by hardening of the glands of the neck. Her illness dates back several years. Her husband died in October, 1906, and since then she has managed the extensive greenhouses in Bloomsburg and was considered one of this section's most successful business women. The funeral was largely attended at St. Paul's Episcopal church, Thursday, July 27. The services were conducted by Rev. Frederic O. Musser.

Wirt pen factory, but for the last year and a half has been employed in the Department of Labor and Industry, as safety expert for the Department. There, his work has been exceptionally successful and he ranks as one of the best experts on "Safety First" in the Department's service.

accept the invitations regularly sent them. The sweet friendliness, the warm affection for the school, the splendid loyalty to her interests were as deeply appreciated by Mr. and Mrs. Hartline.

An organization was effected with Rich'd McHale as President and Miss Anna Curtin as Secty-Treas.

It was decided that for the 1917 meeting a formal banquet would be arranged for and the unanimous wish was expressed that a considerable number of the faculty might attend.
